

PREPARING FOR FOOTBALL

The Organization of an Inter-High School League.

Players From the Business, Eastern, and Western Institutions Enrolled in the Association—Central and Technical Boys Excluded.

The faculty advisers having charge of the football teams of the Business, Eastern and Western High Schools met yesterday afternoon and organized an Inter-High School Football League, composed of the three teams which they represent. The establishment of this league marks a stride in the growth of athletics in the schools of this city, as it is the first time that any co-operative movement of the schools has been undertaken without having the Central High School for the chief participant.

The Central, already the largest school in Washington, had its numbers greatly augmented this year by the temporary annexation of a Technical High School. This, of course, gives Central a far larger number of boys from which to select a team than any other school. In view of this fact the Business, Eastern and Western united in the effort to have Central produce a team consisting entirely of its own boys, leaving the Technical to form a separate team. This Central emphatically refused to do.

The other schools, however, were not willing to play against the combined forces of the Central and Technical, so a meeting of the faculty advisers was called to determine what steps should be taken in the matter. As a result they unanimously decided to form an Inter-High School League, omitting the Central and Technical schools entirely.

Accordingly a schedule was arranged for each of the four teams, to be played in the Eastern, Western, Business, and Central schools twice. The schedule of these games is as follows:

Business vs. Eastern, October 29; Business vs. Western, November 1; Eastern vs. Western, November 3; Business vs. Eastern, November 5; Eastern vs. Western, November 7; Business vs. Western, November 9; Eastern vs. Western, November 11; Business vs. Eastern, November 13; Eastern vs. Western, November 15; Business vs. Western, November 17; Eastern vs. Western, November 19; Business vs. Eastern, November 21; Eastern vs. Western, November 23; Business vs. Western, November 25; Eastern vs. Western, November 27; Business vs. Eastern, November 29; Eastern vs. Western, November 31.

The captains of the teams are: Business, Warren McQueen; Eastern, Eugene Garcke; Western, James Finley.

DEATH OF FREDERIC ARCHER.

The Famous Organist Expires at Pittsburgh, Pa.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 23.—Frederic Archer, organist of Carnegie Music Hall, who died here yesterday, was born in Oxford, England, June 16, 1838. He began his musical career as a chorister at All Saints, Margaret Street, London, in which city and in Leipzig he received his musical education. In 1852 he became the organist of St. Clement's Church and at Merton College Chapel, Oxford, while still engaged in his studies, and subsequently became the organist of the Royal Pantheon at London. In 1883 he became joint conductor with Sir Julius Benedict, of the London Vocal Association, and after engagements at several London churches was made the organist and choral director at the Alexandra Palace in 1872. This position he held until 1880, having become meanwhile the conductor also of the Glasgow Select Choir and director of a provincial opera company.

In 1881 Mr. Archer came to this country, as the organist of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, but in a few years he transferred his labors to the Church of the Incarnation in New York city. In 1885 he founded the "Keynote," a musical journal which he edited. In 1887 he became the conductor of the Boston Oratorio Society, but in 1890 removed to Pittsburgh as Music Director of the United States and Canada, and by his frequent appearances as a lecturer on musical subjects, Mr. Archer commanded the respect of the organ and pianoforte and a number of songs, and was the author of two treatises on the organ and pianoforte, "The Organ" and "The College Organist."

THE SUITS AGAINST M'COY.

Apparently No Defence Being Made by the Plaintiff.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Kid McCoy, who, late in the season, abandoned the Saratoga lake roadhouse, known as the "Kid McCoy Farm," and who yesterday arrived at Queensbury, Ireland, on route to London, does not appear to be making any defence against the two suits responded by his wife, Mrs. Torman Selby. One is for a divorce on statutory grounds and the other for $25,000 damages for an assault alleged to have occurred at Saratoga Lake last August.

Judge Nash, who took an order from the plaintiff, who filed an order from the Supreme Court, is having the summons in the cases published in two newspapers here. If the defendant fails to answer by December 20, the plaintiff's attorney will apply to the Supreme Court for a judgment in each case.

COYNE TO LOOK TO CONGRESS.

The Chicago Postmaster Wants His Bondsman Released From Loss.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 23.—The "Chicago Tribune" prints the following interview had by its Washington correspondent with Postmaster Coyne, of Chicago, who is now at the National Capitol:

"Theoretically, I am a ruined man, having been robbed last night of $74,610. If the robbers had captured only 10 per cent of their booty it would be almost as difficult for me to make restitution from my own resources, so I find myself in the peculiar situation of having been robbed of about ten times as much as I ever had."

"My bond is for $250,000, and my bondsman is liable for the amount of this robbery until they are relieved of the liability by Congress."

"Thus far the reports to me and to the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General contain only the bare outlines of the case. The postoffice inspectors have extensive control of such robberies, and Colonel Stuart, in Chicago, will forward the details by mail. From the reports I have received it is evident the robbers made their entrance from the railroad side, and that they were aiming at the money vault."

"For many years it was the habit of the postoffice to work a large force of men on Sundays. Ever since I have been there we have been endeavoring to get rid of this Sunday work, and only succeeded about three weeks ago. The robbers apparently were aware of this fact, but it was not any secret, and hence does not furnish any means of discovering the identity of the thieves. They must have studied the office with great care."

"I had supposed I would have to go back to Chicago, but late in the afternoon I received a second despatch from Mr. Hubbard saying my presence was not necessary, and advising that I stay in Washington to continue the business before the department which called me here."

"Following the usual custom, I shall have to appeal to Congress to relieve me of the responsibility. There must be regular appropriation passed by both Houses, and approved by the President. Until that is done, I am liable for every cent of the loss. It has been the custom of Congress to relieve postmasters in such a predicament where the facts show clearly that there was no criminal negligence."

"Postmasters are required to deposit their surplus funds, and we send our money regularly to the Subtreasury. We cannot dispose of stamps in any other way except to keep them in the vaults. They are not money, but they are as good as gold. The reports I have received do not seem to indicate that the Chicago robbery was a case of simple negligence, and I presume Congress will relieve me of this liability. I shall stay here a day or two, and then I will hurry back to give such assistance as I may toward discovering and punishing the thieves."
